

Taking Action to Make Geelong the Most Financially Inclusive and Resilient City

Australia's First Place-Based
Financial Inclusion Action Plan
(2020- 2021)

The Financial Inclusion Action Plan (FIAP) Program provides a platform for organisations across diverse sectors to combine forces to improve the lives of more than 2.1 million Australian adults who are financially vulnerable.¹

Since 2015, the FIAP Program has enabled 40 organisations to take collective action to realise greater financial inclusion, resilience and wellbeing within their own sphere of influence.

2.1 million

adults are financially vulnerable in Australia¹

Victorian adults have low or very low level of financial knowledge¹

Rental stress in parts of Geelong is 61%

higher than Victoria³

Evidence from the 650+ actions committed through the national FIAP program shows that¹¹

- $62m has been invested to support 121,000 people in times of financial need
- 500,000+ people have participated in financial capability building workshops
- 10,000+ employees have been trained to improve their ability to support financially vulnerable households

In early 2018, the Helen Macpherson Smith Trust extended an opportunity for Good Shepherd to leverage the learnings of the national FIAP Program and test it in a specific place of disadvantage in regional Victoria.

Geelong was selected as the first location to pilot the concept of a Place-Based FIAP.

The place-based FIAP Program works on the premise that organisations which are on the ground are best equipped to understand local challenges, identify the risks and triggers of financial exclusion, and can take practical actions to address these in collaboration with others.

A message from Elaine Carbines

Financial exclusion is a global problem with local implications and challenges. Research from the Centre for Social Impact (CSI) at UNSW Sydney shows that more than three million adults are financially excluded in Australia, lacking access to safe, affordable and appropriate financial products and services when they need them. Many people also lack financial resilience, the ability to recover from adverse financial circumstances – 2.1 million adults are financially vulnerable, and only 36 percent of the population consider themselves financially secure.

People on low incomes are at a higher risk of experiencing financial stress and hardship; poverty; vulnerability to predatory lending practices, and poorer social, emotional and health outcomes. Financial inclusion is therefore an important contributor to economic development as it enables people to have access to safe and affordable credit, savings and insurance.

Despite three decades of economic growth in Australia, many households in regional/rural communities experience significant poverty and socio-economic disadvantage, fueled by lower education, lower-paid/lower-skilled jobs and uncertain work as compared to urban areas.

The Geelong region aspires to be Australia's most desirable destination for living, visiting, working and investing; renowned for its vibrant inclusive community, and vigorous economy. Yet we acknowledge that the region is not without challenges, including the rising cost of living, as well as pockets of specific socio-economic disadvantage which experience entrenched poverty.

While the level of financial inclusion and resilience is directly associated with an individual, organisations have a critical role to play in strengthening people's ability to cope with financial adversity and support people to develop the internal resources they need to respond to unexpected financial shocks. Historically, Geelong has benefited from successful cross-sectoral approaches such as those practiced by G21-Geelong Regional Alliance and the Give Where You Live Foundation with their GROW initiative which are leading the way in regional economic development in Australia. These initiatives are successfully working with local business, government and community organisations to improve people's lives in the Geelong region by taking actions to address disadvantage, respond to global competition and collaborating with others to develop region-wide community benefit.

The Geelong Financial Inclusion Action Plan (FIAP) Program complements initiatives underway in Geelong to address regional challenges. The FIAP enables local organisations from multiple sectors to take collective action to enhance financial inclusion, resilience and wellbeing of the community, particularly for vulnerable groups who are most likely to be 'at-risk' of low financial resilience. Actions such as better supporting job-seekers through a deeper understanding of their needs; developing responses including proactive hardship management; and financial capability-building for customers, employees and suppliers will contribute to community inclusion in Geelong.

Therefore, I would like to congratulate the local organisations (Geelong FIAP Pioneers) for their proactive leadership in developing Australia's first place-based Financial Inclusion Action Plan in Geelong and acknowledge the support from Good Shepherd to enable this cross sectoral effort to make Geelong the most financially inclusive and resilient city in Australia.

Leading the way in Geelong

The Geelong Financial Inclusion Action Plan (FIAP) Program is proud to acknowledge the proactive leadership of the local organisations (Pioneers) in developing Australia's first place-based FIAP.

The FIAP Program has been conceived to enable organisations from all sectors to better understand their own role in supporting financial inclusion and resilience, and take practical actions to realise this.

Geelong FIAP Pioneers

The Financial Inclusion Action Plan (FIAP) Program

One fifth of the world's population (1.7 billion adults) lacks access to formal financial services from a bank or digital payments provider.⁴

This financial exclusion compromises their ability to break out of the cycle of poverty and participate in economic development, as they cannot save, invest in health or education, or take out a loan.

Significant segments of the population in emerging economies are impacted, in particular the rural poor, women, and displaced people. Yet high-income, developed countries are also likely to experience such exclusion — in Australia, almost 18% of adults lack access to safe and affordable credit, savings and insurance¹, relying instead on informal providers who can charge exploitative fees, and draw unwary users into debt spirals resulting in financial crisis.

Therefore, financial inclusion is a key pillar of economic development and in acknowledgment of this the G20 members committed to a Global Financial Inclusion Action Plan at the 2010 Seoul Summit.

Following this, at the 2014 G20 summit the Australian Government committed to develop a national financial inclusion action plan which would complement the UN Sustainable Development Goals.

Recognising that financial inclusion is best addressed by a cross-sectoral, action-led approach, Good Shepherd was commissioned in 2015 to develop and implement Australia's Financial Inclusion Action Plan in partnership with EY and the Centre for Social Impact (CSI) at the University of New South Wales⁵.

Financial hardship can impact us all, at any stage in our lives. Through the FIAP program, our hope is that every organisation will be able to respond in time and every time to ensure financial hardship can be identified early, managed and overcome. By building capability, awareness and greater access to appropriate products and services, organisations in Geelong will see social and economic benefits realised for their customers, employees and the wider community. I would like to congratulate the Geelong Pioneers for developing Australia's first place-based FIAP and for taking action to strengthen financial wellbeing in their local community.

What is a

Financial Inclusion Action Plan?

A FIAP is a commitment made by an organisation to take practical actions to improve financial wellbeing for its customers, employees, supply chain and community partners.

How does the Financial Inclusion Action Plan Program work?

The Program provides support to organisations to develop a FIAP using a consistent framework of tools and methodologies. Members have the opportunity to build partnerships, and learn from each other through online tools and regular Community of Practice events. It also provides member organisations with the opportunity to contribute to building resilient and supportive communities by:

Enabling participants to work collaboratively across sectors

Testing innovative approaches to improving financial wellbeing

Scaling-up what works via individual and collective action.

By committing to take practical actions, the FIAP members also contribute to 12 of the 17 Sustainable Development Goals which are associated with reducing inequalities and promoting inclusive growth.

Why Geelong?

Challenges and Influences

The Geelong region has a diverse economy, with growing industries and access to infrastructure, yet heavy manufacturing has historically been the biggest employer. More recently, the uncertain global economy and technological disruption has led to the downsizing and closure of many factories.

The local economy is transitioning towards more diversified employment in higher-skilled service industries including education, health, scientific research and tourism¹⁰ yet those with lower skills and education, particularly older workers, are likely to be left behind.

The top two industries providing employment in Geelong - health care and social assistance (15.3%) and retail trade (12%) - are associated with more casual/part-time contracts, lower pay and longer working hours.³ It is therefore not surprising that employed Greater Geelong residents are less likely to work full-time (57%) as compared to the Victorian average (64.5%).³

Some suburbs have significantly higher unemployment rates such as Corio-Norlane (21.6%), Portarlington (10.3%) and Newcomb – Moolap (12.6%) as compared to the City of Greater Geelong (6.9%).⁹

Research shows that people on low incomes living in regional/rural areas, in particular those who are unemployed/under-employed, are the most vulnerable to financial hardship, and the least able to manage financial risks such as rising cost of living.¹⁶

Further life events such as relationship breakdowns resulting in separation/divorce/family violence; ill health, death of family member or care giving responsibilities could lead to financial stress and hardship, contributing to inter-generational poverty, limited access to stable housing and social exclusion.

of low income families in Geelong are in need of government support, compared to the Victorian average of 8.4%⁶

10.7%

of households in Geelong face rental stress⁶

Family violence incidence rate of 1,274 per 100,000

persons in Geelong compared to 1,166 per 100,000 in Victoria⁸

Second highest level of homelessness in regional Victoria affecting 47 people per 10,000⁷

6.3%

of Geelong population (aged 15-64 years) receive Disability support pension as compared to Victorian average of 4.7%⁶

Developing Australia's First Place-Based FIAP

A place-based approach reflects an understanding of the community and its people and empowers them to develop a holistic response to a set of problems that are specific to a location or community.

Place-based approaches are producing positive results in Australia and globally, including greater uptake of services within communities and improved use of local assets and infrastructure. This leads to better outcomes for families and economic benefits at the regional, state and national level.¹⁶

The Geelong FIAP showcases the collective efforts undertaken by the ten local organisations (Pioneers) who are driven by the desire to improve financial wellbeing outcomes in Geelong. The Pioneers put in enormous time and effort to understand the key challenges faced by their customers, employees and broader community and turned these challenges into opportunities for taking action while envisioning Geelong to be the most financially inclusive and resilient city in Australia.

Objectives of a place-based FIAP

Promote local leadership and identifying people within the community who have the capacity to drive change.

Create a framework for local organisations to take actions to realise financial inclusion, resilience and wellbeing within their sphere of influence.

Embed the identified actions into business as usual practice of participating organisations.

Enhance the financial wellbeing outcomes of current and future generations of residents in Geelong.

Over the longer term, implementation of the committed actions are expected to deliver:

Short term outcomes

- Improved support for financially vulnerable customers, employees, suppliers and wider community
- Increased understanding of barriers to financial inclusion, resilience and wellbeing

Medium term outcomes

- Organisational culture enables employees to better identify and support financially vulnerable groups
- More partnerships and collaboration to support vulnerable groups

Long term outcomes

- Improved financial capabilities
- Collective actions become industry norms

Collective Actions, Leading Change

Working together the Pioneers developed a future vision for Geelong and a common set of financial inclusion principles to guide the current and future actions. These principles were informed by undertaking an extensive review of financial inclusion principles from across the globe, as well as other relevant local principles articulated in various local council plans.

Understand

- The social and economic determinants of financial exclusion and resilience
- The impact of financial exclusion on overall wellbeing of individuals

Collaborate

- Through partnerships between government, business, academia and community organisations to achieve financial wellbeing for local communities

Embrace

- The needs, preferences and behaviours of people on the basis of gender, culture, age, ethnicity, disability, sexual orientation, life stages etc. while designing organisation strategies

Commit

- To person centric and targeted actions for groups facing significant barriers to financial inclusion and resilience within the organisation's sphere of influence

Empower

- Individuals and communities to take informed financial decisions by drawing on internal capabilities and appropriate external resources
- Organisations and their employees to provide more holistic support

Measure

- Progress through robust evaluation to inform better strategies and practices
- To build on the evidence base

'Shifting the Dial' on Financial Inclusion, Resilience and Wellbeing in Geelong

Over the past 24 months, the Geelong Pioneers have worked together to understand the local challenges contributing to financial hardship and stress, and co-designed 40 actions to address these challenges. These actions focus on improving access to safe and affordable products and services, increased understanding of financial vulnerability, enhancing economic security, and financial capability.

Actions committed in the Geelong FIAP are expected to prevent people from falling back into distress and improve financial resilience which include implementing hardship and cross referral programs to better support vulnerable customers; improving the availability of targeted supports such as emergency relief, specific scholarships for students in financial hardship, delivery of financial capability development workshops; and identifying the challenges of employees experiencing financial hardship.

The Geelong FIAP recognises and acknowledges the potential synergies and collaboration opportunities with various community driven and multi-sectoral initiatives in Geelong.

Supporting Customers in Hardship

We can

We are proud to be part of the first place-based FIAP program in Geelong, as Barwon Water has a long history of supporting regional prosperity and engaging with the community to make a difference to health and wellbeing. Our aim is to build financial inclusion and resilience of our customers and we are committed to supporting those who may be vulnerable and experiencing financial difficulties. The FIAP program has and will continue to provide us with an opportunity to enhance these outcomes as we challenge the way we think, test new ideas and work with others to create a greater impact within our local community and region as a whole.

Customer Assistance Pop-Ups with Barwon Water

Barwon Water recognises that some customers may from time to time experience hardship, which may vary in its extent and duration depending on individual circumstances. Just over 12 months ago Barwon Water undertook a series of workshops with support agencies who directly assist people experiencing hardship within the region. These sessions explored the group's definitions of hardship, areas of hardship in our region and priorities relating to this.

The feedback and learnings from these sessions led us into co-designing our Customer Support Strategy, which is centred around four strategic objectives:

- 1. Building capability of our staff
- 2. Improving and expanding on our suite of hardship programs
- 3. Raising awareness
- 4. Building trust through partnerships and engagement.

One of the ways we are raising more awareness of our program is through our new shopping centre pop-up stalls. These are providing our customers with an alternate way to access our services that form part of the customer support program. Since mid-2019 we have been to Corio, Newcomb, Colac and Ocean Grove shopping centres, helping over 200 customers.

This is how we met Mary. Without success, Barwon Water had attempted to make contact with Mary on a number of occasions, to see how we could provide a greater level of support. We did end up providing this support, following Mary's visit to our pop-up location in Corio.

What we were not aware of was that Mary had a hearing disability and was unable to answer our calls. When meeting her in person, we were able to place Mary on an Arrange & Save payment plan as well as assist her to complete a Utility Relief Grant application which has since been granted by the Department of Health and Human Services as well as being matched by Barwon Water.

Community opportunities for financial inclusion

Re-building Life after Family Violence through Financial Counselling Support with Bethany

Sally visited Bethany Community Support to seek assistance to re-establish herself after being separated from her husband due to family violence.

She was looking for a rental property for herself but was unable to pay the bond or rent in advance. She did not have any savings due to her partner's gambling habits and accumulated debts.

Bethany's financial counsellor sourced initial support from housing establishment funding to assist with bond and advance rent to secure a rental property for her.

Sally was also offered assistance with budgeting, debt management and financial goal setting. She had numerous personal loan debts and outstanding bills that had been put in her name, joint debts which she was now left to negotiate and pay the outstanding amount on her own.

The financial counsellor negotiated with various service providers to arrange more flexible payment options as well as transferring accounts to her ex-husband's name – accounts that were set up in her name initially as her ex-husband was unable to receive services due to non-payment of previous debts.

Currently, Sally is applying for family violence flexible support packages so she can concentrate on other debts in her name and move on from her past.

Sally keeps the financial counsellor updated when she is able to pay down and cancel a debt, moving payments to the next debt. She continues to save $200 per fortnight. At times, Sally uses this money for unexpected expenses, but she is committed to keeping her savings going so she can reach her goals.

Assisting Job Seekers

MatchWorks paid for car repairs so I could keep my job. They paid for my rego and petrol, medication, dental work, glasses and food vouchers — it gave me back my life!

Kerry
MatchWorks client

MatchWorks helped Kerry find employment with less financial stress

MatchWorks client Kerry knows all too well what it feels like to desperately need support.

The mature-age job seeker found herself in real financial trouble after her marriage ended. Then depression and agoraphobia set in.

“No-one wanted to employ me even though I had years of experience...I ended up homeless, surviving on one meal a day,” Kerry said.

The Torquay job seeker needed dedicated support to get life back on track. That’s where MatchWorks stepped in with employment services and financial assistance.

“We advised Kerry to retrain in aged care so she could boost her employability,” MatchWorks Employment Consultant, Leanne McPherson said.

“At first she resisted strongly... then homelessness loomed again and it was the motivation Kerrie needed to finish her course.”

Kerry said she got life-changing support from MatchWorks once she proved herself.

“Leanne stood by me the whole way and I got massive support from MatchWorks,” she said.

“MatchWorks paid for car repairs so I could keep my job. They paid for my rego and petrol, medication, dental work, glasses and food vouchers — it gave me back my life!”

MatchWorks General Manager jobactive, Nicole Mattsson said Kerry is one of a huge number of job seekers who need financial assistance.

“Providing financial assistance means we remove some of the burden so people can focus on finding the right job with less stress,” Nicole said. Kerry loves her new Social Support role at Simply Helping and describes them as an inclusive company who values mature-age employees.

“It’s the best job ever. These people [Simply Helping clients] are really doing it tough and I want to give back after all the support I received,” Kerry said. “They make my day and I know I am making their day too.”

Enhancing Financial Wellbeing of employees

Workplaces Have an Opportunity to Prevent Late Life Poverty

Australia has an emerging pattern of homelessness in older age and this is particularly evident for women. A key contributing factor is that savings of older working women remain low, often due to a lifetime of lower incomes and interrupted employment patterns resulting in first time homelessness later in life.¹⁴ Evidence suggest that employers have a role in reversing trends of financial vulnerability, by enhancing employees' financial capability throughout their employee life cycle.¹⁵

Employers can provide the opportunity by focusing on motivations for people to learn more and provide for their future, ultimately improving their financial wellbeing and sense of control over their lives.

Removing stigma and encouraging open conversation about finances in places of employment could be coupled with financial literacy program to boost people's confidence about money.

At WorkSafe Victoria we explored whether our people had similar financial wellbeing needs to what global research suggests. The outcome is that they do have financial wellbeing and literacy needs, despite being a skilled workforce.

The next steps will be important as we need to find a way to build financial capability into the employee life cycle at WorkSafe Victoria.

2020 and beyond

Australia's first place-based FIAP in Geelong is an important milestone to enhance financial inclusion, resilience and wellbeing of regional communities across Australia.

This journey will continue with the efforts of the Pioneers to identify more opportunities for taking practical actions.

Addressing mental health issues and youth disadvantage emerged as the two major areas of opportunities for future actions at the recently held Geelong FIAP Community of Practice in December 2019.

Research shows that there is a strong relationship between an individual's mental health status and financial wellbeing outcomes. Also evidence suggests that improving financial literacy and capability of young adults are key to positive economic outcomes throughout their lives.^{12, 13}

Over the next 12 months, the Geelong FIAP Pioneers will implement the committed actions and share their experiences with local stakeholders. The successful implementation of the plan will be underpinned by Pioneers' shared vision for Geelong to be the most inclusive and resilient city in Australia and their commitment to promote financial wellbeing outcomes for Geelong residents.

Monitoring and evaluation will play an important role in measuring the outcomes and impact of FIAP actions and allow organisations to demonstrate change or lack thereof, and know where and for whom they are making a difference.
